

Department of International Relations & Diplomacy

College of Political Science

Salahaddin-Erbil University

Subject: International Terrorism

Second year Students

Course Book - (2st year student)

Lecturer name:

(Sara Haiman Ali)

Academic year: 2020-2021

1-Course Name	International Terrorism
2-Lecturer in charge	Sara Haiman Ali
3-Department/ College	International Relations
4-Contact	E-Mail: sara.ali@su.edu.krd
5-Time(In hours) per week	Theory : 6 hour s
6-Office Hours
7- Course Code	PSIR2205
8- Teacher's academic profile	My thesis named as a (The Internal and Regional Dynamics of Kurdish Question in Iraq between years 1991- 2001), which briefly is about the Kurds in the north of Iraq, which they are The largest ethnic groups do not have their own state. Since the end of World War one and after the division of the Kurds in to four main countries Turkey, Iran, Iraq and Syria. The Kurds struggled with their central governments in their countries to get the rights of self- determination. The focuses of my dissertation is on the Kurdish question in Iraq between the years of 1991 to 2001. The aim of my research is to examine the most significant factors which affected the emergence of a Kurdish state in the north of Iraq in the above time period. The internal and regional dynamics and the interaction between them in north of Iraq will be explored in this dissertation. In addition to this, in order to reach the aims of the research there was an extensive study of relevant literature and interviews were undertaken with different politicians in the Kurdistan Regional Government (KRG) as well as with different university professors. The findings from this research provide evidence that the interaction between the internal and regional dynamics had a negative effect on the KRG. The main conclusion drawn from this research is that wrong movements on behalf of the Kurdish political parties in the north of Iraq in 1991 were the primary reasons as to why the Kurdistan region in Iraq did not establish an independent state.

Education:

- Master degree of International Relations, University of Nottingham, United Kingdom / 2012.
- BSc Political Sciences, University of Salahaddin, Erbil, Iraq / 2007.

High School Certificate, literature department, Zahra Secondary School, Erbil, Iraq / 2003

Skills:

- Ability to teach undergraduate students.
- Ability to implement new responsibilities. Follow instructions well.
- Knowledge and ability to utilize modern office equipment and software's.
- A hard working person.
- Ability to work under pressure, flexible in working hours.
- Work well in a team.

9- Course Overview:

the Lecture will provide students with the most comprehensive introduction to terrorism as a global phenomenon. It introduces students to history, politics, ideologies, and strategies of both contemporary and older terrorist groups.

Also, each chapter explains a different aspect of terrorism and illustrates this with a wide variety of detailed case studies from across the world.

10- Course Reading list and References:

- 1- Global Terrorism/ second edition / James M. Lutz and Brenda J. Lutz
- 2- The History of Terrorism from Antiquity to Al Qaeda / Gerard Chaliand and Arnaud Blin
- 3- Understanding Terrorism: Challenges, Perspectives, and Issues / C. Augustus Martin
- 4-Global Terrorism: A Beginners Guide / Leonard B. Weinberg

11- The Topics	Lecture's Name
Week (1) What is Terrorism?
Week (2) History of Terrorism from 1789to 1900
Week (3) Terrorism in the early 20st century
Week (4) Why Terrorism? Causes of terrorism
Week (5) Classification and categories
Week (6) Tactics, Weapons, and Targets of terrorism
Week (7) Case study (9/11)
Week (8) Al Qaeda
Week (9) ISIS
Week (10) The Responding to the Terror
Week (11) Terrorism: A continuing phenomenon
Hint: 1- Final Examinations and Cuisses depending on time board. 2- Questions, Exercises and problems are included at the end of each chapters (Solved problems at class and home works).	