What is Millennial?

The Millennial generation or as some call them the Generation Y (Gen Y) is largely considered to be a group of people born between 1980–2000. Millennials have come of age during a time of technological change, globalization and economic disruption. That's given them a different set of behaviors and experiences than their parents.

They are committed to health, dedicating time and cash to exercising and eating right. Their dynamic way of life impacts patterns in everything from food and drink to designing homes. They are propelled by what they've seen on their desktop, mobiles, and tablets.
